CONDITIONS OF SALE.

1. The highest Bidder to be the Buyer, and if any dispute arise between two or more Bidders, the Lot so in dispute shall be immediately put up again and re-sold.

2. The Purchasers to give their names and addresses, and to pay down a cash deposit, or the whole of the Purchase-money, if required, in default of which the Lot or Lots so purchased to be immediately put up again and re-sold.

3. The Lots to be taken away at the Buyer's Expense and Risk upon the conclusion of the Sale, and the remainder of the Purchase-money to be absolutely paid, or otherwise settled for to the satisfaction of the Auctioneer, on or before delivery; in default of which the undersigned will not hold themselves responsible if the Lots be lost, stolen, damaged, or destroyed, but they will be left at the sole risk of the Purchaser.

4. The sale of any Article is not to be set aside on account of any error in the description, or imperfection. All articles are exposed for Public Exhibition one or more days, and are sold just as they are, without recourse.

5. To prevent inaccuracy in delivery and inconvenience in the settlement of the Purchases, no Lot can, on any account, be removed during the Sale.

6. Upon failure to comply with the above conditions, the money deposited in part payment shall be forfeited; all Lots uncleared within three days from conclusion of Sale shall be re-sold by public or private Sale, without further notice, and the deficiency (if any) attending such re-sale shall be made good by the defaulter at this Sale, together with all charges attending the same. This Condition is without prejudice to the right of the Auctioneer to enforce the contract made at this Sale, without such re-sale, if he thinks fit.

La Source du LusineHeight, 40 inches ; length, 59 $\frac{1}{4}$  inches

The head waters of the River Lusine emerge from a deep gorge or canon of the Vosges Mountains, encompassed by savage cliffs of precipitous rock. The sun has descended below the level of the cliffs, whose shadows darken the stream and render its character more wild and its solitude more strange and sad. The scene is in the artist's native district, where he was fond of seeking subjects and where he found some of his most powerful and grandest inspirations, to the greatest of which this belongs. It was painted in 1875, and is signed at the right. From the date, it must have been completed by Courbet after his exile to Switzerland, in 1871, for participation in the violences of the Paris Commune.

Lion Devouring a Goat

Height, 10½ inches ; length, 14 inches

In the sombre depths of a tropical forest a massive lion is making a ferocious meal off a goat which it has carried off to its lair. In spite of its savage satisfaction in the feast, the huge beast preserves an air of watchfulness, as if anticipating interruption. In powerful color, fierce spirit, and the vivid suggestion of actuality, this picture is one of the finest possible examples of the artist's triumphs in this special line, of which he was especially fond on account of its ferocious picturesqueness of suggestiveness. Signed at the left.

The Judgment of Wouter Van TwillerHeight,  $21\frac{1}{2}$  inches ; length,  $30\frac{1}{2}$  inches

In Chapter I. of Book III. of "Knickerbocker's History of New York," we are informed how that wise magistrate Wouter Van Twiller decided the lawsuit between Wandle Schoonhoven and Barent Bleeker, who had fallen out over their respective accounts, each claiming that the other owed him money. So the sage Van Twiller ordered each to bring his account book to him, when, having weighed them in his hands and counted the leaves, he announced that he had found each book to be as thick and heavy as the other, and that, therefore, neither owed the other anything, so that "Wandle should give Barent a receipt, and Barent should give Wandle a receipt, and the constable should pay the costs." This is the scene which the artist illustrates with a humor equal to that of the author himself. The picture was painted in 1876, and is signed at the left.

No. 297

GUSTAVE COURBET,

FRANCE

The Rising Sea

Height, 32 inches ; length, 39½ inches

A storm is blowing up the English Channel. A bank of clouds, sullen and dark with the portent of sulphurous storm, is driving across the sky. A fishing boat, warned by the forerunners of the tempest, is speeding towards its harbor. In the foreground, the sea, rising, but not yet in its terrific fury, breaks in massive rollers over the shallows of the shore, making a stern threat of what is yet to come out of the wrath of the elements. Courbet's fierce and contentious spirit inspired him to some magnificent pictures of the sea, always in times of storm. He worked in these moods in a glass-windowed shed so close to the waves that the salt spray left an incrustation on the panes. His great picture, "The Wave," is one of the most stirring modern works in the national collection of France, and all of his sea-pieces are justly ranked among his most exemplary works. Signed at the left.

ETCHINGS

No. 327

The Cast Shoe

Height,  $16\frac{1}{2}$  inches ; length,  $23\frac{1}{2}$  inches

Etching by Robert W. Macbeth. Artist proof impression. Macbeth is a son of the Scotch portrait painter Norman Macbeth, and was born at Glasgow in 1848. He studied art at the Royal Scottish Academy schools there, and commenced to exhibit pictures in oil and water colors in 1870. Experiments in etching eventually inclined him to the extensive practice of that art, both with original subjects and reproductions, and he holds an unrivalled place to-day among the etchers of England.

No. 328

Charles Darwin

Height, 22 inches ; width, 16 inches

Etched by Paul Rajon, after the original portrait by W. W. Onless, R. A. One of the earliest proofs, with eight heads in remark on the margin. This is one of the most highly esteemed of the etcher's plates. Rajon was the son of a barber and hairdresser at Dijon. He obtained employment with a photographer in Paris as retoucher, studied painting under Pils and etching under Bracquemond. He worked in London and New York, and returning to Paris from this city after a second visit to the United States, died of pneumonia in 1888. This portrait of Darwin won the etcher a medal at the Universal Exposition of 1878.

No. 329

The Grafter

Height, 18½ inches ; length, 20½ inches

Etched by Victor Focillon after the original picture by Jean François Millet. Remark proof. Focillon was born at Dijon, and is a graduate of the School of Fine Arts of that city. He has acquired especial distinction for his reproduction of the pictures of Millet and the other great painters of that school, in which he preserves the handling and sentiment of the originals, as well as the form and composition.

No. 330

The Children of the Sea

Height, 16½ inches ; length, 27 inches

Etched by Carel L. Dake, after the original painting by Josef Israels. Artist's proof, signed by painter and etcher. Dake was born in Amsterdam, in 1857, and was a student in the studio of Charles Verlat in Antwerp. His work as an etcher ranks him as the most original and advanced technician in the Low Countries, and among the first living. He is a professor of the Antwerp Academy of Fine Arts, and for ten years, while experimenting in etchings, was granted a pension by the late King William III. This picture, which is among his most highly esteemed plates, represents the little children of a fisherman, who, having made a toy boat out of an old wooden shoe, are sailing it in the wash of the breakers on the sea-shore.

No. 331

After Rain

Height, 15 inches ; length, 25 inches

Artist etching by Henry Charles Fox, of London. Remark proof. This artist is a workman in the school of the late B. W. Leader, and is well known as a painter and draughtsman, as well as a daring experimentalist in the possibilities of artistic etching, with invariably powerful results.

No. 332

Murtly Moss

Height, 16 inches ; length, 25 inches

Artist's proof etching, two signatures, by A. Brunet-Debaines, after the original picture by Sir J. E. Millais. Alfred Brunet-Debaines is the son of an architect, born at Havre in 1845. He studied painting at the Paris École des Beaux Arts, and under Pils, and then practised etching under Lalaune, Gaucherel, and Normand. He is not only widely known as an artist-etcher, but also for his remarkable reproductions of the works of other artists, made in France and during a long sojourn in England.

No. 333

Christ before Pilate

Height, 25 inches ; width, 35½ inches

Proof of the etching by Charles Waltner, from the original picture by M. Munkacsy, with remark portraits of artist and etcher, and signed by both. Original painting in the collection of the Hon. John Wanamaker, Philadelphia, Penn. Waltner was born in Paris in 1847, and was a pupil of Martinet, and Henrique Dupont in engraving, and of painting under J. L. Gérôme. He eventually adopted etching, and in 1869 won the Prix de Rome at the Salon. His plates after "The Angelus" of Millet, "The Night Watch" of Rembrandt, Gainsborough's "Blue Boy," etc., are famous wherever engravings are known. He is a chevalier of the Legion of Honor and a member of the Société Nationale des Beaux Arts.

No. 333 "A"

No. 335

Evening Glow

Height, 20½ inches ; width, 15 inches

Etched by Théophile Chauvel, after the picture by Karl Heffner. Artist's proof. Chauvel was born in Paris in 1831. He studied under Aligny and Picot, and became well known as a landscape painter, first exhibiting at the Salon of 1855. In 1867 he commenced to exhibit as an etcher, and in 1870 as a lithographer, and in 1873 he practically gave himself up to etching, though he still paints and lithographs upon occasion. He is recognized as one of the leading landscape etchers of the French school ; is a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor, President of the Society of French Etchers, and was awarded the Salon Medal of Honor 1881, for his plate after Corot, "The Willow Bank."

No. 336

The Hamlet

Height, 9½ inches ; length, 12 inches

Artist etching by Georges Antonin Lapisgich. Remark proof on parchment. Lapisgich was born at Vichy in 1854. He is a pupil of Bonnat, Le Roux, and Le Cou-teux, and is recognized as a painter as well as an etcher. This plate is esteemed his finest original work. It is in pure dry-point, extremely brilliant and rich in color.

No. 337

Ville d'Avray

No. 347

The Syndics

Height, 23 inches ; length, 34 inches

Etched by Charles Koepping, after the painting by Rembrandt at Amsterdam. One of the unique edition of one hundred and twenty-five artist's proofs ; the plate destroyed. Koepping was born in Dresden, Saxony, in 1848, and studied chemistry, which he abandoned for art. After working as student and painter in Munich, he went to Paris in 1876, and meeting there with the great etcher Waltner, had his attention seriously turned to etching. His plate of "The Syndics," at the Salon of 1887, immediately placed him on a footing with the greatest reproductive etchers of modern times. Since 1890 he has been at the head of the school of engraving and etching attached to the Royal Academy of Fine Arts, Berlin. He is a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor, and a member of various academies.

No. 348

Evening on the Oise

Height, 16 inches ; length, 26 inches

Remark proof etching by Charles A. Walker, after the original picture by Charles François Daubigny. Charles A. Walker, born in London, N. H., in 1848, began as an engraver on wood, became a steel engraver, invented the monotype process from original motives, and next turned his attention to etching, producing both original and reproductive plates. "With the sole exception of 'Solitude,' etched by Chauvel, no Daubigny reproduction has been so successful as the 'On the Oise.'" Parchment.

No. 351

Evening on the Oise

Another impression of the above described, No. 350.

No. 352

La Rixe

Height, 17 inches ; length, 22 inches

Etched by Felix Bracquemond, from the original painting by Meissonier, presented by the Emperor Napoleon III. to Queen Victoria and the Prince Consort, and now in the private collection of the Queen of England. Remark proof. The remark is a portrait of Meissonier on horseback, etched by himself, on the margin of the plate. Signed by artist and etcher. Felix Bracquemond was born in Paris in 1833. He studied painting under Joseph Guichard and Ingres, and received medals at the Salon for his pictures in oil, and later as an etcher. He is an Officer of the Legion of Honor, etc., and is the greatest of living French etchers. This plate, for which Queen Victoria loaned the original picture to the etcher for reproduction, is now entirely out of print in all the early states. It was etched in 1885.

ENGRAVINGS

No. 354

The Madonna Della Scala

Height, 19½ inches ; width, 14 inches

Line engraving by Paolo Toschi, after the original picture by Correggio. Remark proof before letters. Toschi was born at Parma in 1788, went to Paris in 1809 and there studied under Bervic. He was an engraver of masterly experience and a solid style. In 1819 he returned to Parma and established there a school of engraving, being also made Director of the Academy of Fine Arts. Among his works was the series of engravings from the frescos of Correggio, at Parma, executed by his pupils under his direction. This plate is entirely his own work. He died in 1854.

No. 355

The Virgin and Angels

Height, 18 inches ; width, 12½ inches

Line engraving by Alphonse François, after the original picture by W. A. Bouguereau. Artist's proof. François was born in Paris in 1811, and was a pupil of the École des Beaux Arts and of Henrique Dupont. He first exhibited in the Salon of 1842, was made an Officer of the Legion of Honor in 1867, and a Member of the Institute in 1873. Among his plates are some which are accounted among the best productions of modern engraving.

No. 356

Christ, St. John, and AngelsHeight, 16 inches ; length, 17 $\frac{1}{8}$  inches

Line engraving by Givotia Garavaglia, after the painting by Carlo Maratta. Garavaglia was a native of Milan, and a pupil and follower of Giuseppe Longhi, who founded the Milanese school of engraving in the last century.

No. 357

The Immaculate Conception

Line engraving by Achille Lefevre, after the painting by Murillo. Proof. Lefevre was born in Paris in 1798. He was at first an engraver of portraits, but later essayed more ambitious work. This plate is a reproduction of the picture now in the Louvre, which was brought to France by Marshal Ney after the Peninsular Campaign in Spain under Napoleon I. It was engraved about 1833. The picture is known in the French catalogues as "L'Annonciation." Lefevre was made a Member of the Legion of Honor in 1851. Died in 1864.

No. 358

The Transfiguration

Height, 28½ inches ; length, 19½ inches

Line engraving by Raphael Morghen, after the picture by Raphael. Open letter proof. Raphael Sanzio Morghen was born near Naples in 1758. He was the pupil of his father and uncle, and of Volpato in Rome. He devoted himself to engraving historical portraits and the masterpieces of the old Italian masters, and won a reputation which extended throughout the world. He died at Florence in 1833, and his death was lamented in Italy as a national calamity. A public monument to his memory was erected in the Church of Santa Croce in Florence. He was, at his death, court engraver to the Grand Duke of Tuscany. The Transfiguration was engraved by him in 1811, and constituted his work of the year. It was the engraving with which he was introduced, at the invitation of Napoleon I., to Paris, in the Salon of 1812.

No. 359

The Last Supper

Height, 17 inches ; length, 35½ inches

Line engraving by Raphael Morghen, after the fresco by Leonardo da Vinci. Proof, with dedicatory line on plate, before letters. This is the engraver's masterpiece, as conceded by all authorities on the art of engraving. It is accepted as the best representation of the picture in existence. The original work was a fresco, and was badly used during the wars. It was then quite as badly restored. Morghen made a careful study of it, secured all that he could secure of the painter's original studies for it, and, adhering closely to his originals, has given us the best, and, indeed, the only true version of Da Vinci's "Last Supper" which we possess to-day. Morghen spent three years engraving this plate, and it ranks as his masterpiece.

No. 360

AuroraHeight,  $17\frac{1}{4}$  inches ; length,  $35\frac{1}{4}$  inches

Line engraving by Raphael Morghen, from the painting by Guido Reni. Proof before letters. "Morghen's reputation was soon afterwards established upon the appearance of his well-known plate of the Aurora, from Guido's fresco in the Rospigliori Palace."—WILLIS O. CHAPIN: The Masters and Masterpieces of Engraving.

No. 361

MagdalaenHeight,  $11\frac{1}{4}$  inches ; length, 15 inches

Line engraving by Giuseppe Longhi, after the painting by Correggio. Longhi was born at Monza, in Italy, in 1766. He was intended by his family for a monk, but became an engraver. He was a pupil at the art of Vincenzo Vangelisti of Florence, who had been a pupil of Wille. Going later to Rome, he met Raphael Morghen, and was influenced as well as instructed by him. He won recognition, and established the school of engraving at Milan, in connection with which he was recognized as a great teacher. The Magdalaen, which he engraved from the picture in the Dresden Gallery, is described by Willis O. Chapin as an "exquisite engraving." Longhi died in Milan, in 1831.

No. 362

The Communion of St. Jerome

Height,  $28\frac{1}{2}$  inches ; length,  $17\frac{1}{2}$  inches

Line engraving by Pierre Alexandre Tardieu, after the painting by Domenichino. Tardieu was born in Paris in 1756. With Bervic, to whom he succeeded as Member of the Institute in 1822, he provided the connecting link in the transition period between the great engravers of the past and the present centuries. His chief employment was in portraits, but such subject engravings as he made were of the highest character. For this plate, which he engraved in 1821, and exhibited in 1822, he received the Legion of Honor and was admitted into the Institute. Beraldi, "Graveurs," etc., Part 12, says of it: "One of the most remarkable pieces of engraving of this century." Tardieu died in 1844.

No. 363

Diana

Height,  $18\frac{1}{2}$  inches ; length,  $17\frac{1}{2}$  inches

Line engraving by C. Raimondi and Paolo Toschi, after the picture by Correggio. Proof before letters, with remark and inscription. Raimondi was a pupil of Toschi, working very closely to his master's style, and upon the death of Toschi took his place as head of the engraving school at Palma.

Paternal Advice

Height, 18 inches ; length, 14 inches

Line engraving on copper, by John George Wille, after the painting by Gerard Terburg. Wille, although claimed by the French school of the last century, was born at Königsberg, Germany, in 1717. He established himself in Paris, where he married, and where his son P. A. Wille, many of whose pictures the father engraved, was born. The "Satin Gown," as this plate is called from the dress of the young matron whose father and mother have come to visit and advise her, is one of his acknowledged masterpieces. Wille died, at the age of 91 years, in Paris.

No. 365

The Madonna of San Sisto

Height, 26 inches ; length, 20 inches

Line engraving by Friederich Müller, after the original picture by Raphael in the Dresden Gallery. Müller was the son of Johann Gotthard Müller, court engraver to the King of Wurtemberg, was born at Stuttgart in 1782, and a pupil of his father, and in Paris of Wille, Bervic, Tardieu, and Desnoyers. This plate, which is his masterpiece, was completed by him in 1815. He rested great hopes upon it, and undertaking to publish it himself, it proved a business failure, whereupon he killed himself, with one of his own engraving tools, on May 3, 1816. This plate has since been recognized as one of the best line engravings of his time, and has made him famous.

No. 366

La Joconde
